The National Study of Learning, Voting, and Engagement (NSLVE) is both a service to higher education — providing participating colleges and universities with tailored reports containing their students’ registration and voting rates — and a national database for research on college student political learning and engagement in democracy. NSLVE is the signature initiative of Tisch College’s Institute for Democracy and Higher Education. The Institute seeks to shift institutional priorities, practices, and culture to strengthen democracy and advance social and political equity. This mission is achieved through research, resource development, and convening.

The National Study of Learning, Voting, and Engagement (NSLVE) is both a service to higher education — providing participating colleges and universities with tailored reports containing their students’ registration and voting rates — and a national database for research on college student political learning and engagement in democracy. NSLVE is the signature initiative of Tisch College’s Institute for Democracy and Higher Education. The Institute seeks to shift institutional priorities, practices, and culture to strengthen democracy and advance social and political equity. This mission is achieved through research, resource development, and convening.